

Craft a kid-friendly sleeping nook.

When you have a 1,000-square-foot property and several grandchildren who visit regularly, every inch of space counts. Designer Ashley Gilbreath carved out the perfect hideaway for little ones under a stairwell in this Seaside, FL, beach house. Roll-down flaps offer privacy while napping or reading, and built-in drawers provide just enough space to store clothes and sheets. And its practicality doesn't stop there. "The mattress is covered in an indoor/outdoor fabric, but you can put a sheet on top and dress it as a normal bed or leave it as is for hanging out," she says.
